YEARBOOK PATRON CONTEST

Managers have been selected to direct the drive for securing patrons for the yearbook. Each class and organization has its own managers, in order to insure an orderly and successful campaign. These managers will contact each individual student in their respective groups, and provide them with the materials needed to secure patrons. The students will then return the money received ($2.00 for personal patron, 5.00 for business patron) to their respective managers. The following graph illustrates the quotas set for your class or group.

These quotas have been determined by the number of individuals in each group plus an additional fifty percent. The yearbook staff is depending on every individual, in each group, to do his or her part. If the student obtains his parents, and one other person, as patrons, all goals will be reached. As an incentive, a $25.00 prize is offered to the group that first reaches their goal. A hint: business patrons count as three personal patrons. Also along the line of prizes offered is $25.00 to the individual acquiring the most business ads.

GIRLS, VOLLEY THAT BALL

The Marian Maids "B" squad re-venge the defeat of the Varsity team at the hands of Normal College on Wednesday evening. That evening the team's record at 2 and 2. They originally had beaten St. Vincent's School of Nursing, and had gone down in defeat at the hands of Indiana Central College.

The Indiana Academy of Science meets at Marian today. If you have an interest, do attend the symposium, and if not, be friendly to our guests.

LAUGH IT UP

The heading is a fooler. I'm going to talk about the upcoming retreats. The retreats will be held at Fatima for the women, and at Alverna for the men. The date is the week-end of the twenty first of November. Unfortunately, this date conflicts with the basketball tournament at Richmond. A retreat can be quite valuable, but support of the team is also important. I would suggest that you do what you think best. There will always be more opportunities to make the retreat. However, I would suggest that you try to get to the retreat house, since, it seems to me that this type of retreat is more advantageous than the retreat here at school between semesters. And then, too, you'll have more time off between semesters. For reservations, see Carole Kerske or Jim O'Donnell. Remember, a retreat is required for all Catholic students.

MORNING PAPER

Starting Monday, three Indianapolis Stars will be available in the Perc. This will give any who are interested a chance to catch up on the news. Finance of this move is a problem. For the present, we will ask for fifteen cents a day, which you can drop in the suggestion box. So, if you have a spare penny, let go of it. It seems to us that there should be no problem having fifteen students drop one penny in the box.....The papers are a suggestion of J.J. O'Brien.

Let it be understood that the editors of the Carbon hold no grudge against the Feenix for messing up our names in their last issue. We would like editor, Bertha Mack, and associate editor, Anne Marie Hedge, to know our sentiments.

George DeHart '58, has informed us that, being with the USMC, he has access to dynamite, etc. and would be glad to send some for dynamiting the school. Thanks, George. Happy to know that you're thinking of us....

YOU, THE STUDENT

Here's a note of interest to those of you students maintaining less than a three point average. The Carbon has arranged to take over twenty acres adjacent to the Madison Avenue Expressway (thanks, Harold) for the purpose of a collective farm. Sounds exciting, doesn't it? And just think.....you'll never have to worry about having security. And here's some real motivation: brown bread makes your fingernails grow, plus Petr Pickand shovel says, "I've eaten brown bread for nigh onto 50 years, hood more than 5,000,000 potatoes; and believe me, I feel fit as a sickle. And for those of you who are found on the Dean's List, we have for you from 25 to 90 leaves per mouth.

Junior class meeting next Thursday at noon in the Physics lecture room. Important explanation of the Prom.

There seems to be a problem among some of the freshman girls as to what type of dress is to be draped for the "Sadie Hawkins" dance. Well, I don't know what to tell you. I really don't even know how this problem got into my hands. You can dress convention or you can come in gunny sacks, etc. Actually, some of you would look better in the gunny sacks. You can look in the L'il Abner comic strip and get the idea.

Regards, Dior
